

“Fact is, our Lippmann shortened crushing time by several months. It’s just that productive!”

“Cutting labor and overtime is where we really save with our Lippmann crushing plant” says Mitch Mertens, Mertens Construction Co., Inc., Missouri. “We named our Lippmann 3048 Portable Jaw Plant the ‘The Kingfish’ after dad. It’s the dream machine he always wanted. It’s a tragedy he passed before he could see it run. The jaw is incredible. With its throw and nip angle, it’s like it creates a vacuum and sucks the rock down,” Mertens states.

Mertens Construction owns 10 quarries and has rapidly gained a reputation for providing high quality Superpave rock. Mertens recently set up their two-stage Lippmann 3048 Jaw and Lippmann 5165LS Impactor in another company’s quarry, because their brand of jaw/cone (compression to compression) plant couldn’t produce the quality of fractions needed for Superpave.

“This is our first portable plant, all the rest are fixed. We’re thinking of taking one stationery installation out and using the Lippmann. Fact is, our Lippmann shortened crushing time for a commercial rock project by several months! It just produces that much more so fast. Lippmann provides tremendous wear and product support too,” states Mertens.
